THE WOMAN'S LAND ARMY

How the Farmerettes Have Risen to Distinction

The growing importance of the woman farm worker is indicated in the appearance last month in a metropolitan daily of a plea for 50 farmerettes to help gather the fall crops of a certain New York county. The possibility of organizing a woman's land army in Minnesota is being argued; apparently western people are not aware of the extent of the service this organization has rendered in the East, since some of the state papers rather ridicule the idea. In 1918 15,000 farmerettes worked on the land in New York, and the demand in 1919 has been even more apparent, proving the women have made good. When farmers pay $8 per acre for harvesters and corn cutters strike for $9 for a day's work, in addition to board and lodging, the farmer realizes he is in a fair way to run his farm for his health rather than for a living profit.

It is not the supposedly easiest jobs that have been sought by the women. They have preferred to drive hay rakes, cultivators, mowers, to mow away from the barn rather than the mere monotonous and uninteresting work of hand-weeding and thinning out. Shortage of labor has driven farmers to the use of machinery wherever possible, and in this field women have proved as capable and more careful than the average farm hand. The life has proved healthy and wholesome, the outdoor exercise beneficial. The community life has afforded the stimulus of womanhood to many lonely girls, and brought a new element into the lives of young people on the farms. The plan of housing the workers in camps has relieved the women of the farms of much hard work, and some have enjoyed the work sufficiently to make it permanent. If the shortage of labor continues, and there is little hope that it will not, Michigan farmers and fruit growers will find it necessary to mobilize a woman's land army and build camps for their housing. Under production must inevitably accent, the cost of living, and without labor production must decrease.

The woman's land army has proved of sufficient service to entitle it to federal recognition; it has been made a division in the United States employment service. Having demonstrated its usefulness in an emergency, it seems likely to prove a permanent feature; it furnishes another opening for women's activities. Though the American mind revolts at the idea of women in field work, conditions are very different from those in the Old World, and when all is said, a sunstroke is less frequent and no more dangerous than a "stove-stroke."—Detroit Free Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex A. Milne of Hill street, who for the past week have been visiting in Boston, returned to their home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Petrie left here yesterday afternoon for Burlington to call on friends before going to Boston for a week's vacation.

Regular meeting Sons of Veterans auxiliary Wednesday evening, Oct. 22, at 8 o'clock. All officers requested to be present for practice.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Knapp of St. Johnsbury, formerly of Barre, are the parents of an eight-and-a-half-pound boy, born this morning.

Bag day for the Barre City hospital, Thursday, Oct. 23. Don't forget the day, and be sure to have the filled bag on the steps by 9 o'clock.

Dorothy Wheeler, who has been attending Goddard seminary for several weeks, returned to her home in Northfield yesterday afternoon.

The Tosi academy aggregation of football men will meet the Spaulding high school eleven on the Lincoln campus to-morrow night at 4:15.

There will be a whist party at Hotel Barre Friday afternoon at 2:30 under the auspices of the home economic department of the Barre Woman's club—adv.

Mrs. Alexander Massie and daughter, Bessie, stenographer for Grand Juror A. A. Sargent, left yesterday for Boston, planning to remain for a week of 10 days with relatives.

A son, Carroll Robert, Jr., was born at the Barre City hospital Saturday night to Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Fenwick, who reside at the Effie Fenwick farm on the Barre-Plainfield road.

Mrs. Angioletta Morandi of Waterbury is taking a few days' vacation from her duties in the Waterbury Savings bank, and visiting at the home of Mrs. E. Berni on Columbia place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gordon and daughter, Lillian, returned from Haver, N. H., yesterday, where they attended over the week end the 150th anniversary of Dartmouth's institution.

With a dollar and a girl, you can whirl, whirl at the U and I ball in the grand town hall, known as Howland hall. For a merry, merry night, a happy jubilee, come all three, to hear Carroll's orchestra Tuesday evening, Oct. 21—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Wendelyn Beck, who for the past week have been enjoying a wedding trip in Massachusetts, visiting Boston, Worcester, Lowell and Winchendon, returned Sunday night, and at present are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Beck at 19 Branch street.

R. D. Munson, local representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., has made extensive repairs in his office and display room, completely renovating the office and refitting the woodwork. The display room has also been fixed over and varnished. A new lighting system will be installed inside and outside the store.

Goddard's football team came out of Saturday's game with few injuries and excepting Wilmut, who is nursing a bad knee, and Sullivan, who has a few body bruises, the team is in fine condition. Coach Leahy will put the men through a severe grilling on punting, field goal kicks, recovering fumbles and interferences. It was a great detriment to the team last Saturday in the game with Port Ethan Allen not to be in better shape on these points of the game. Coach Leahy will also introduce charging under a rope, which keeps the men down while in the game. Coach Leahy is sure the team will be in fine shape to meet the St. Michael's college team next Saturday on their grounds.

The Winooski eleven has a fast bunch of players this year and a good game is expected.

People in the parcel post zone of this city are about to receive better service in deliveries of parcel post packages, for instead of a team on an Indian motorcycle with a van attachment will be used to deliver the bundles.

This machine arrived here yesterday afternoon and was put into service at the A. M. Flanders bicycle shop. As soon as the van attachment arrives the machine will be put into the postal service. This three-speed, 19-horse-power Indian motorcycle is one of the many shipped to France to be used by dispatch riders during the war. Then it was that thousands of these machines were manufactured for war purposes. Except for flat mudguards, it resembles any other Indian motorcycle. The war department has turned them over to the postal department and, consequently, they are being distributed throughout the country. Toward the end of the year round in parcel post deliveries, and they are to be used here as much as possible. The team will be retained in case stormy weather in winter makes travel with this vehicle impossible. An inspector from the department at Washington, D. C., made a visit to Barre a few weeks ago and in his report suggested this change, which will cause all deliveries to be received one or two hours earlier than at present.

Arthur Carbonneau of 54 Maple avenue left this morning for Winooski and the Fanny Allen hospital, where his wife has been for the past five weeks.

During that time the underground four operations and is now able to return home and is expected to return with her husband this afternoon.

The increased rate of wages for stone cutting apprentices, recently adopted by the granite manufacturers throughout the country at the suggestion of the local Granite Manufacturers' association, seems to have formed the impetus that was needed to induce young men to enter the industry. In the past few months many have applied at the manufacturers' office for positions, whereupon they have been made placements. Four young men from Waterbury, Dan H. Hamel, Robert E. Douglas, Vernon Charles and Howard Harvey, began work at the industry yesterday.

Carl Price of Keaton, O., president of the National Retail Monument Dealers' association, and Louis J. Schlesselman, secretary for the same association, started on their homeward journey from Barre yesterday after visiting granite dealers in this city. These two men made the eastern trip to attend the first convention of salesmen throughout the country at the Hotel United States in the granite firm of Phillips & Slack in Northfield. A banquet in this connection was given last Friday, to 45 or more conventioners in the Barre granite district.

On account of differences between the crew and their manager, F. J. Knappen, engaged by the E. J. Gode Advertising Co. of New York to erect signboards for the United States Tire Co., in this vicinity, Mr. Knappen will complete the work here with Mr. Countryman, while the remainder of the workmen have left for the South, where they will do similar work during the winter. Henry Smith has been appointed manager of the gang and until he joins the crew in the south he will finish the work between Hartford, Conn., and New York City. Mr. Knappen will return to headquarters in New York for instructions.

A horse owned by D. V. Theriault of Williamstown and driven by O. A. Theriault of the same place, figured in what might have been a serious runaway. Mr. Theriault had brought some produce to the M. & G. restaurant and was driving to that place, when the horse started, being frightened by an approaching switch engine, ran onto Depot square and then turned up Main street and ran several blocks, being stopped by a bystander near the Howland building. The horse was not hurt, but it was necessary to take the wagon to a repair shop for extensive repairs. Mr. Theriault hung onto the animal's harness for several rods, when it started, but was unable to stop the frightened horse, so he released his hold for fear of serious injury to himself.

Miss Evelyn Carle was most enjoyably surprised to hear her home, 43 John street, last evening when 40 of her young friends came to assist in celebrating her 17th birthday. The evening was taken up chiefly with games, dancing and music. In this group were a number of talented musicians, who displayed their skill to the entertainment of their friends. Mario Barberi, Elbio Monti, Ermen Caleagni and Rigo Comelli furnished music for dancing. A vocal duet was given by Miss Marie Rossi and Miss Olga Caruso, accompanied by Miss Nellie Carle at the piano. Miss Armanda Copeland also favored the gathering with a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Elsie Roca. After the affair was well under way a short period intervened for refreshments of ice cream, cake, sweets, punch and was followed by a song by Mrs. Avella Tomasini, Olga Bianchi and Betty Carle. It was in this opportunity Miss Nina Ramella stepped forth to present the guest a beautiful purple silk umbrella. The various diversions continued until an early hour and it was with considerable reluctance that the young people dispersed to their homes. Shortly before leaving, Goddard and Spaulding school cheers were given, since students from both schools were present. The committee responsible for the enjoyable evening were Misses Olga Caruso, Marie Rossi, Armanda Copeland and Nina Ramella.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our appreciation of the kindness shown us in our recent bereavement by the neighbors and friends of the late John Moore.

Mrs. John Moore, Mr. and Mrs. James Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Moore. Websterville, Oct. 20, 1919.

MONTPELIER

The condition of Walter C. Joslyn, who was injured by falling into his silo, is very favorable at Heaton hospital. One of the pelvic bones was broken, but he is gaining as fast as can be expected, although he will be in the hospital for some time yet.

The automobile of Miss Marguerite Hunting was recently stalled on Cliff street Saturday evening for an hour. It is a long car and in turning around it was stopped with the front wheels against the raised sidewalk and the rear wheels against another elevation so that planks had to be used to get the machine turning around. Brandon Jones was driving the car.

The case of Howard and Hayden vs. G. A. Peck and M. A. Hoadley was tried yesterday in Montpelier city court. It is claimed that the defendants, who sold some property, did not make the repairs that were agreed to, while the defendants endeavor to show they did more than was expected. The jury was taken to the site on North street to look over the property. It developed out of the swapping of property in which the defendants claim there was not the amount of timber land that was claimed to have been on the property the plaintiff swapped.

To see Maine Central engines running on the Central Vermont railway is a unique thing among railroad men, but such is the case, for engines 450 and 451 arrived Sunday and have been placed in service. They have been loaned to this company, while three of the 230 class engines are sent to the Shenectady, N. Y., shops to be overhauled and constructed into superheated passenger engines. These engines have been in service for some time. There is a shortage of rolling stock without these three engines, so the railroad administration loaned the two above-named passenger engines to the Central Vermont. They are large engines, about like the 330 class, only a little heavier and are superheating engines. They were used on the express Monday.

Someone has said that trouble comes in bunches and that seemed to be the feeling that Burton Ward had Monday when his automobile hit Ruth, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Nelson, on Court street. Mr. Ward is the father of Kenneth Ward, who was driving the automobile in the accident Saturday night when two Montpelier seminary students lost their lives. It appears that Mr. Ward was driving along Court street. There were many children playing on the street. He was trying to avoid a bicycle which was dodging around between two approaching cars when suddenly this child ran from behind the bicycle and his car hit the child. Although her clothes were torn some and looked pretty bad, the child escaped serious injury, her bruises being on her face for the most part, although to-day she was pretty lame.

Ernest Godet of Paris arrived Monday evening for a week at the home office of the Lane Manufacturing company. He is connected with the firm of George Reims, who is in charge of the Paris office. Mr. Godet came here for the purpose of spending a week in learning this end of the business.

Frank Cormier and Thomas Maloney were given 30 days in city court Monday afternoon because they got intoxicated, resulting in their being arrested for intoxication, to which they pleaded guilty. James Holoran, who was arrested for breach of peace, pleaded not guilty and a trial will take place. He is charged with mixing-up his household affairs.

Emerson W. Shedd left last evening for a short stay in Ohio and if he finds what he desires he will make his home in that state. He was recently discharged from the army, after several months' service in France.

The will of Charles W. Melcher, late of Barre, has been presented in probate court. F. L. Small has settled his account as administrator of the estate of Joe Sasi, late of Barre. Mrs. Mary Grandfield has settled her account as administratrix of the estate of Bertha Canning, late of Waterbury. Henry Dwinell has settled his account of the estate of H. D. B. Dwinell, late of Marshfield.

The case of Mike Seal Beverage Co. vs. Harry E. Mehan, general assumpsit, has been entered in county court.

Commissioner of Industries J. S. Butties was in Rutland yesterday attending a hearing relative to compensation. It was the case of Mrs. Katherine Jones vs. Rising and Nelson Seal Co., in which the petitioner's husband was killed. To-morrow two hearings will take place. White River Junction. Those are Mic Matsakas vs. the National Acme company of Windsor. The first hearing was held in 1916. Several hearings have been placed. The petitioner at first would not permit a physician to treat his hand, resulting in his nearly losing his hand, resulting of the fingers had to be amputated. The second hearing is Mrs. Margie Gates vs. the A. G. Dewey Woolen Co., the question being relative to compensation, the petitioner living away from her husband.

W. H. Jeffrey, secretary of the board of charities and probate, left this morning for New York, where he was called to attend a conference of the executive of the charity boards of the United States. He will also spend two days at the prison conference which is now being held. The other members from Vermont who will attend the conference are J. E. Weeks, C. W. Wilson and R. H. Walker of Montpelier, who were appointed by Governor Clement, while F. H. Tracy and H. C. Lawson of Montpelier, who were appointed as delegates by Mayor H. C. Sturtevant, will be unable to attend owing to the Long trial being in progress.

Miss Beatrice Holton and Miss Linda Crane have returned from Boston after a week's visit.

THE SAME OLD SELFISHNESS.

Diplomats in European Capitals Busy Muddying the Waters.

Diplomats as a class are a hard-working, well-intentioned lot, who deserve few of the harsh words which the forward-looking have said about them in the last few years. But there is a certain type of hide-bound diplomat to whom the means seem infinitely more important than the end, the game than the stakes. And unfortunately some of these men who regard diplomacy as a sport, or who are still thinking in the period when one nation's prosperity was held to imply the necessary misfortune of another, are still in positions where they can do a great deal of harm. The activities of the Italian foreign office in stirring up the trouble over Fiume furnish perhaps the most distinguished of recent examples; but British diplomacy has done a good deal of harm in the Near East in recent months, and some of the men in the French foreign office, if the Paris Temps is still to be regarded as reflecting their views, are now providing an excuse for the hard words which have been cast at the whole profession.

The Temps, in discussing the recent cabinet changes in Turkey, declares that French wishes and French interests demand a Turkish empire from Adrianople to the Persian frontier, which shall apparently be the same old Turkish empire of before the war except for the loss of Mesopotamia, Palestine, Arabia and Syria. The Turk, that is to say, is to be kept in Europe; he is still to have his way with the Greeks of Thrace and the Aegean Islands, and with what is left of the Armenians. The sultan must still be Caliph, and Caliph in Constantinople. "International organizations which have done so much for Turkey in the past," understood as a euphemism for groups of investors in Turkish bonds, among whom French influence was predominant, must be strengthened.

It would appear from all this that certain French diplomats are disturbed, perhaps not without good reason, over the extent to which their British rivals have extended British influence in Turkey. Britain will in some form or other have control of Mesopotamia, perhaps of Palestine; the new kingdom of the Hedjaz is under British influence; the treaty with Persia does guarantee that Persia will be removed from the danger of German, Turkish or bolshevik intrigue, but on the surface it is much to the advantage of Britain; against all this France has nothing to show but the somewhat uncertain prospect of a mandate for Syria. No wonder that the gentlemen in charge of the near eastern bureau of the French foreign office are eager to think up some method of restoring the balance. They must do something to save their reputations, and what they undoubtedly regard as the legitimate interests of their country in the Near East, which happen to be bound up with their reputations.

France and England both have legitimate interests in Turkey. France is the one who bought Turkish bonds before the war deserve consideration. But the Greeks and Armenians and other Christians living under Turkish rule also deserve a little consideration. The Turk must be put out of Europe; he must be confined within boundaries where as few Christians as possible are left under his sovereignty. The world is large, including the voters who in all the principal allied countries have, in one form or another, a very considerable control over foreign policy, is likely to think that the interests of these peoples are even more weighty than those of diplomats who still regard statecraft as a game, and consider peoples who are in the way as of small consequence. Our amateur diplomats have made some grievous blunders, but from this particular failing they have so far been immune.—New York Times.
